Webinar Summary

The STC Washington, DC Chapter and STC Technical Editing Special Interest Group are pleased to bring you this webinar with speaker Michelle Corbin.

Although there are plenty of words in our language to choose from, our technical environments unconsciously encourage us to create new terms, abuse existing terms, and forget the basics of good technical communication. This presentation will describe why controlling technical terminology is so critical to our success, explain common terminology challenges that writers and editors face today, and discuss tools, tips, and tricks for how you can control the unnecessary sprawl of terminology.
